The Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Washington (JCRC) is the public affairs and community relations arm of the Jewish community, representing The Jewish Federation of Greater Washington and more than 100 Jewish organizations and synagogues throughout D.C., Maryland, and Virginia. The JCRC focuses on government relations, Israel advocacy, intergroup relations, and social justice. Our agency endeavors to foster a society based on freedom, justice, and democratic pluralism. The JCRC lobbies for local Jewish organizations and public policy priorities; strengthens local domestic support for Israel; builds bridges between local Jews and other Greater Washington area faith, ethnic, and minority communities; and provides hands-on opportunities to fulfill the Jewish value of tikkun olam (repairing the world). The JCRC of Greater Washington is a partner agency of The Jewish Federation of Greater Washington.

We are pleased to present this overview of the JCRC’s numerous and diverse achievements over the past 24 months, a period encompassing breathtaking changes locally, nationally, in the Middle East, and in the world. In the past two years, the Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Washington has continued fulfilling our mission of advocating for the needs of the local Jewish community, responding to challenges facing us, and building for the future. Amid shifting political, social, and economic trends, JCRC remains a steady, consistent leader in improving our community, including strengthening relationships with key public, community, faith, and intergroup leaders; identifying and accessing new government funding streams; developing innovative and robust pro-Israel initiatives; enhancing JCRC staff coordination and greater collaboration among our constituent organizations; producing dynamic proactive and responsive programming; and increasing the number of JCRC activists and donors.

Having raised more than $1 million in a special campaign to position our agency for the future, we enhanced our agency’s professional capacity and public impact by adding an associate director position to our staff and engaging a marketing firm. These investments have allowed JCRC to expand its programmatic agenda and media presence at a time when voices such as ours are more important than ever. From the development of new programming, including this year’s “1967 Miracles & Challenges” digital toolkit, which features original lesson plans, resources, and programming ideas, to a more intensive response to anti-Semitism in our schools that included numerous outreach programs for parents, our ability to serve and lead our community has been significantly strengthened.

Of course, our support for Israel is a mainstay of our work, not only in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Six-Day War and reunification of Jerusalem. Our agency continues to vigorously oppose efforts on the state and local level to delegitimize Israel, and to support proactive efforts to enact legislation protecting Israel from boycotts, build grassroots support for Israel locally, and train high school students to navigate the challenges of Israel activism on the college campus.

Working with elected officials throughout the Greater Washington region, we helped secure more than $8 million from state and local governments for Jewish agencies and schools to improve facilities, provide desperately needed services to vulnerable populations, and increase security in a time of surging anti-Semitism.

With our schools and institutions experiencing a dramatic increase in reported anti-Semitic vandalism and threats, we are deepening partnerships with our region’s leaders in politics, law enforcement, and school systems and within other ethnic and faith communities.

Despite the polarized political environment, the JCRC continues our important work of building a unified community by advocating for things that unite us and speaking out against injustices. We thank you as always for your support that makes these efforts possible. In particular, we thank Cookie Hymer Blitz, JCRC president 2014-2016, for her two years of stellar service and leadership, our board members and the JCRC staff.

Executive Director
The JCRC is honored to serve as our regional Jewish community’s most highly respected and influential voice in the halls of state and local government. Through its jurisdictional commissions, and with the benefit of relationships developed and nurtured over many years, the JCRC effectively represents the Jewish community to elected officials in Maryland, Northern Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Through parlor meetings, advocacy days, emails blasts, and individual meetings with legislators and their aides, we advocate for the needs and priorities of our community and for robust funding for our region’s Jewish agencies; monitor bills concerning a variety of social, cultural, religious, and economic issues; and provide opportunities for Jewish voters to engage directly with elected officials and candidates for public office.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Held numerous legislative breakfasts, parlor meetings, and candidate forums in Virginia, D.C., and Maryland
- Testified in favor of Maryland Gov. Larry Hogan’s request for an increase in a state program that provides scholarships to low-income private school students.
- Lobbied in Maryland for the Health Care Decisions Act, which prevents individuals who are the subject of protective orders, or who are separated and/or in the process of divorcing their spouses, from serving as health care agents for their potential/alleged victims.
- Supported a Montgomery County bill to create a strategic plan to reduce and eliminate food insecurity.
- Secured $8 million in government funds, including more than $1.4 million, for security upgrades to local Jewish institutions and schools.
- Obtained the first Virginia state funding for Jewish social services programs to support Holocaust survivors.
- Fought attempts in Virginia and Maryland to delegitimize Israel.
- Supported legislation on disability rights in Virginia and Maryland, and participated in Jewish Disabilities Advocacy Day.
- Opposed legislation in Virginia for two years running that would have allowed for discrimination against members of the LGBTQ community.
- Urged Virginia Gov. Terry McAuliffe to veto a bill targeting Planned Parenthood and other health providers that offer abortions and other reproductive services.
- Accompanied Maryland Gov. Larry Hogan on an economic mission to Israel.
Community members made their voices heard at advocacy days in Richmond, Annapolis, and Montgomery County.

COMMUNITY AND INTERFAITH RELATIONS

JCRC promotes mutual tolerance and respect by building bridges to all races, religions, and ethnic backgrounds. We are proud to stand with both Jewish and non-Jewish allies in working toward the creation of a just society where all are welcome. The past two years have seen a dramatic uptick in acts of anti-Semitism, racism, and hatred of the “other.” The JCRC has been in the forefront of condemning these acts and combatting anti-Semitism, Islamophobia, and other expressions of prejudice in our communities.

HIGHLIGHTS

> Hosted Protect & Prevent: A Workshop for Jewish Institutions, with The Jewish Federation of Greater Washington at the JCC of Northern Virginia.

> Coordinated and co-sponsored A United Response to Hate Speech, Bias Incidents, and Hate Crimes at Northern Virginia Community College, which drew hundreds of community members and dozens of public officials and religious leaders.

> Co-sponsored second annual Washington-Area Rabbi-Imam Summit.

> Facilitated scholar-in-residence program with Dr. Amy-Jill Levine, professor of New Testament and Jewish studies at Vanderbilt Divinity School and College of Arts and Sciences, for Lutheran clergy and the Washington Board of Rabbis on the occasion of the 500th anniversary year of the Protestant Reformation.

> Served in leadership positions on numerous interfaith and intergroup boards and committees, including chairing the InterFaith Conference of Metropolitan Washington and co-chairing the Faith Community Working Group of the Montgomery County.

JCRC is a model for other faith communities in terms of embracing the broad spectrum of Jewish traditions and advocating very effectively on their behalf, and also working collaboratively with all faith traditions in creating a more beloved community.

— Rev. Mansfield “Kasey” Kaseman, Office of Community Partnerships of Montgomery County
ISRAEL ACTION CENTER

The JCRC vigorously supports the State of Israel, training and empowering grassroots activists to advocate for a strong U.S.-Israel relationship and defending it against delegitimization on campus.

HIGHLIGHTS

> Hosted meetings, conference calls, and webinars with prominent Middle East experts and Israeli public officials.
> Educated hundreds of teens and their parents, preparing them for engaging with Israel on campus.
> Continued participation in the Greater Washington Forum on Arab-Israeli Issues, including co-sponsoring Annual Community Education Day on Arab Citizens of Israel.
> Created and launched 1967: Miracles & Challenges, a digital toolkit of comprehensive resources serving as a one-stop shop to assist Jewish institutions and individuals in learning, reflecting on, and teaching about this pivotal moment in the history of Israel and the Jewish people.
> Trained 15 Northern Jewish activists to engage with Protestant congregations on behalf of Israel.
> Served as Washington-area coordinator and expert adviser for “Project Community,” a joint effort of the Israeli government and the nongovernmental organization Gesher, which brought 20 Israeli mayors, journalists, NGO leaders, and other influentials to the community.

For more than 40 years, the JCRC has been honored to undertake the sacred responsibility of Holocaust remembrance and education in the Greater Washington region. Through annual Yom Hashoah commemorations, our Holocaust survivor speakers bureau, and consultations with educators, we remember the victims, honor survivors, and serve as a resource to teachers, students, and the community at large for teaching about the magnitude and consequences of the Holocaust — and the lessons that can be gleaned. We nurture close, long-standing, meaningful relationships with many of our local survivors and their families, and ensure their active participation in the planning and implementation of JCRC’s Holocaust-related programming.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Organized and led annual communitywide Yom Hashoah remembrances in Maryland and in Northern Virginia. The 2016 program theme was Seeking Truth and Justice — 70 Years After Nuremberg; in 2017, the commemoration, Displaced Persons: Struggles to Find a Home, focused on the displaced persons camps and the universality of the refugee experience.

- Brought survivors to speak to more than 7,000 adults and children.

- Sponsored annual luncheon honoring survivors in Northern Virginia.

Thank you for continuing to offer a place and a chance for each generation to remember the past.

– Pearl Raikin, child of survivors

As long as I will be able to, I will continue to tell my story. It’s very important, especially for our young people. They are our hope for the future. Hopefully, they will take a stand & protest when they witness any injustices. Yasher Koach, continue to do the work that you do.

– Rita Lifschutz Rubinstein, survivor
EDUCATION OUTREACH

The JCRC is committed to supporting our area schools in their efforts to provide a welcoming environment for all people. We collaborate with our interfaith partners proactively to reach out to educators, parents, students, and the community at large through targeted initiatives, and we are an important education and advocacy resource for local Jewish families whose children attend public and private non-Jewish schools.

HIGHLIGHTS

> Worked with the Montgomery County Public Schools to develop Guidelines for Respecting Religious Diversity.

> Created an online calendar for educators highlighting religious observances of approximately a dozen faiths, denoting the dates on which students may need accommodations due to religious practices.

> Presented community-wide workshops addressing bias and prejudice in public school settings, aimed at helping parents navigate the school system.

> Facilitated training sessions for educators on Judaism, Israel, and the Holocaust.

> Presented at workshops for social studies teachers based on the Institute for Curriculum Services’ Israel and the Middle East Conflict curriculum unit. ICS aims to strengthen the quality of K-12 education related to Judaism and Israel topics.

> Helped revise and edit the adopted history and social science Standards of Learning for Virginia, to improve the accuracy of teachings about Israel and Judaism.
SOCIAL JUSTICE

The JCRC proudly works to fulfill our faith tradition’s prophetic voice by linking arms with interfaith and intergroup partners to advocate for public policies that promote fairness, tolerance, and equality for all.

HIGHLIGHTS

> Co-sponsored Virginia Interfaith Center for Public Policy Day for All People, with 150 faith leaders and congregants from around the state advocating for immigration reform, criminal justice reform, redistricting, access to health care, gun violence prevention, economic justice, and eliminating childhood hunger.

> Launched our first strategic social justice partnership with Tzedek DC, a new Jewish community-sponsored public interest center that safeguards the legal rights of low-income D.C. residents who face debt collection suits.

> Partnered with HIAS (formerly Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society) on two major events — an interfaith community Havdalah and a Jews for Refugees Assembly — to educate our community and mobilize a coordinated, impassioned response to the federal travel ban that disproportionately affected Muslims and refugees and, more generally, to the rising tide of Islamophobia and xenophobia in American society.

> Co-sponsored Racial Justice Town Hall in Silver Spring, focusing on work being done in the Montgomery County Public Schools in response to racist, anti-Semitic, and bias incidents.
JCRC IN THE NEWS

The JCRC serves as a collective Jewish voice to the community at large; on social media, it is one of the most strongly followed JCRCs in the nation. Our professionals are highly sought-after for their perspectives and analysis on a wide range of issues of critical importance to the Jewish community, and routinely appear in a diverse range of national, local, and Israeli outlets, including The Washington Post, NPR, WTOP, WAMU, Baltimore Sun, JTA, Washington Jewish Week, Koli Habirah, and i24 TV. Over the past two years, our opinion pieces have been published by such media outlets as the Baltimore Sun, Kveller, and eJewish Philanthropy.

Over the past four years, JCRC’s revenue has continued to exceed expenses, allowing the organization to build a reserve for future use or unexpected community needs. The significant increase in FY 16 revenues is a result of the completion of the Campaign for the Future. In FY 17, the JCRC began to use funds from that campaign, and thus expenses exceed revenue for the year.

JCRC continues to maintain a healthy balance sheet, with assets consisting primarily of cash and receivables from the Jewish Federation of Greater Washington for the FY 18 allocation, pledges from the 2017 gala, and the Campaign for the Future. Liabilities consist of currently due bills. Net Assets Temporarily Restricted represents funds to be used in the coming years or for a specific purpose.
